Divine Mercy Sunday

On this beautiful Feast of Divine Mercy, the Church invites us to enter more deeply into the heart of Christ, a heart overflowing with love, compassion, and boundless mercy. In today’s Gospel, we encounter the Risen Jesus appearing to His disciples, offering them peace in the midst of fear, and mercy in the face of their weakness.

“Peace be with you,” He says, not as a reward for their faithfulness, but as a gift in their fragility. Even Thomas, who struggled to believe, is not rejected but gently invited to come closer, to see and to trust. This is the way of Divine Mercy: patient, understanding, and always reaching out to meet us where we are. Divine Mercy Sunday reminds us that no sin is too great, no wound too deep, and no heart too far gone for God’s love. The Lord does not tire of forgiving us; rather, it is we who sometimes tire of asking. Yet today, He reassures us: His mercy is inexhaustible. We are also called to become instruments of that same mercy. As we have received compassion, so we are sent to extend it, to forgive, to show kindness, to lift-up those who are burdened, and to be signs of hope in a world that longs for healing. May we place our trust in Jesus more fully today, echoing the simple and powerful prayer:

“Jesus, I trust in You.”

And may His mercy transform our hearts, renew our lives, and flow through us to all we meet.
